60 Loses Lives as Revolt in Peru is Crushed

CERRO REGIME CONTINUES TO CONTROL PERU

SOUTH AMERICAN COUNTRY IS UNDER MARTIAL LAW TODAY

UPRISING AND BATTLE AT THE HISTORIC FORT OF REAL FILIPE

By G. F. FINE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Lima, Peru, Feb. 21.—The provisional government of Luis H. Sanchez Cerro continued to control Peru under martial law today after an uprising and battle, last night at the historic fort of Real Filipe, adjoining Callao, costing 60 lives, including one American.

While complete official figures had not been compiled, it was believed that of the casualties, about 40 were from federal troops and about 20 were rebels.

The American, Reginald A. Skidmore, of Bethlehem, Pa., was killed by a stray bullet while lunching at the Foreign Club.

Although a government message was issued saying the rebellion was quelled and the "situation was under control," heavy patrols marched the streets here and in the capital's port due to general uneasiness caused by fighting.

The rebels, under leadership of General Pablo Martinez, retreated to the ancient fort after an unsuccessful attempt to seize the presidential palace here.

Loyal troops were dispatched and the battle which ensued lasted from mid-morning till late afternoon, when a white flag was hoisted over the buttress of the fort.

Lieutenant Colonel Ruben Del Castillo, leading the loyalists, placed the surviving attackers under military arrest. They will be tried for treason later.

No explanation of the uprising was forthcoming from the government heads but it was rumored that the insurgents sought to free former President Augusto B. Leguia, overthrown by the present regime last fall.

With the assurance of safety supplied through martial law the numerous shops which closed during the trouble yesterday were opened today and the city again took on an appearance of peace. Troops were placed at vantage points and at all banks.

SHIPPING THROUGH NEW ORLEANS FACES CRITICAL SITUATION

New Orleans, La., Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Shipping through the port of New Orleans faced a critical situation today as members of the Longshoremen's union made ready to strike.

The more than 5,000 laborers expressed grievances with shippers and announced a "port-wide strike" effective Monday, charging their members had been abused by "unscrupulous employers."

Dissension has been rife on the water front here for months. It has been charged from time to time communists were working among the longshoremen and inciting discontent.

THIS WEEK IN THE LEGISLATURE

St. Paul, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Scores of bills, among them measures pertaining to practically every one of Minnesota's state departments, were introduced in the legislature during the past week.

Tuesday—Bill requiring five day lapse between time marriage licenses are issued and the ceremony performed was recommended for passage in senate minority report. Olson announced 600 state employees whose monthly payroll is more than $100,000 will keep their jobs.

Wednesday—J. N. Peyton of Duluth was confirmed by the senate as state banking commissioner. Attorney General's office ruled that a state income tax is constitutional.

Thursday—Income tax bill drafted for senate introduction providing $10 tax for salaries of $1,000 a year and a larger tax of incomes of more than $1,000.

RACKETEERING RIVALRY CAUSES FATAL SHOOTING

3 MEN KILLED ON EAST SIDE OF NEW YORK CITY, FOURTH WOUNDED

LATEST OUTBREAK CENTERS AROUND ABE WAGNER, ACKNOWLEDGED LEADER

New York, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Enmity and racketeering rivalry was blamed today for an outbreak of shooting on the east side in which three men were killed, a fourth critically wounded and another man believed at least to have been wounded.

The latest outbreak centers around Abe Wagner, acknowledged leader of the old east side, and racial enmity between Italian and Jewish gangsters was held partly responsible for the shootings. Wagner's brother, Al, was one of those killed.

Those dead in the latest outbreak of shooting are:

Al Wagner, John ("Aces") Mazza, and John Franzone, who was out on $10,000 bail pending trial on charge of killing a detective.

Charley Brown was seriously injured and police believed it possible that Abe Wagner—who for the second time within 24 hours ran into an ambush—was injured or killed.

Mazza was found dead last night at First Avenue and First Street, a prayer for the grace of a happy death through the intercession of St. Joseph in one pocket. He had been shot. John Franzone, the Italian, was found in the Bronx, shot to death, but police believe he was killed on the lower east side and his body taken to its resting place behind the Woodlawn cemetery.

Al Wagner was killed in the Hatfield House hotel, where the ambush apparently was laid for Abe Wagner and his cohorts. Brown, one of Wagner's henchmen, was injured there. Al Wagner's body was found in a room which had been rented by several men at the Hatfield house. There was a table on which was a bottle of liquor, glasses for four, and four chairs. Brown was found reeling from the hotel, with four bullet wounds in his side. He refused to talk other than to say: "I think they got Abe too."

Night before last a round of shotgun fire greeted Abe Wagner as he stepped from his automobile on the lower East side. He escaped.

KNIGHTHOOD FOR CAPT. CAMPBELL

CONFERRED ON ENGLISHMAN IN RECOGNITION OF BREAKING WORLD'S SPEED RECORD

London, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—King George today conferred a knighthood on Capt. Malcolm Campbell, the world's motor car speed king.

The knighthood was in recognition of Campbell's accomplishment at Daytona Beach, Fla., where he set a world speed record by driving 245.73 miles an hour in his car, "Bluebird II," Feb. 5.

The ceremony in which the racing driver, who came home to England from his conquests in America as a popular conquering hero, was at Buckingham Palace.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, Campbell talked to the newspapermen 40 minutes about King George.

"He amazed me by the number of technical questions he asked about the car. He wanted to know about the engine, and what about skidding at such high speeds."

"Then he wanted me to tell him just what it felt like to travel 245 miles an hour, and how I could see at such speed."

"When I talked about the United States and some other subjects I told him about seeing the Harvey-Dundee fight (Vince Dundee beat Len Harvey, English boxer, in Madison Square Garden), the king immediately showed remarkable knowledge of boxing."

Before arriving at Buckingham Palace, Campbell had been given a reception seldom accorded a commoner.

Los Angeles, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Two women were under arrest today in connection with the death by poisoning of August Lindstrom, 82, father of Peter H. Lindstrom, wealthy Chicagoan.

Upon request of the son, the elder Lindstrom's body was exhumed at Williams, Ariz., and brought here, where chemists discovered the stomach contained "enough poison to kill 40 men."

The women held were Mrs. Esther Carlson, 62 for 15 years Lindstrom's housekeeper, and Mrs. Anna Erickson, their neighbor.

Police Capt. William Bright said Mrs. Carlson, who was formally charged with murder, told him, "Mrs. Erickson put me up to it."

Mrs. Erickson, herself a victim of poison, was under technical arrest at General hospital. Physicians said they found arsenic in her stomach.

Capt. Bright said Mrs. Carlson and Lindstrom had a joint bank account, which was withdrawn the day after Lindstrom died. Mrs. Erickson, he said, withdrew the money by means of a note of authorization from Mrs. Carlson.

HONORARY DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAWS CONFERRED BY THE COLLEGE

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—George Washington, whose birthday anniversary will be observed tomorrow, held an honorary degree of doctor of laws from Yale College, correspondence on file in the Sterling memorial library revealed today.

Writing to the general on April 26, 1781, President Ezra Stiles of Yale notified him of the award. "We cannot add to the accumulation of glory which shines around the name of Washington and which none but himself thinks is unmerited," said President Stiles, "but we are ambitious of the honor to enroll his name in the archives, among those whose literary merits entitles them to the highest academical dignities."

Washington replied under the date-line "New Windsor, May 15, 1781," expressing gratitude "for the polite manner in which you are pleased to request my acceptance of this distinguished mark of favor," and adding:

SENATOR SCHALL TO FIGHT NORDBYE CONFIRMATION

POLITICAL CONTROVERSY OVER MINNESOTA PATRONAGE TO SENATE COMMITTEE

SCHALL DECLARES PRESIDENT'S ACTION AS A "STUDIED AFFRONT TO ME"

Washington, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—The long drawn out political controversy over Minnesota patronage had been taken before the senate judiciary committee today with Sen. Schall, republican, Minnesota, planning a determined fight to block confirmation of Gunnar H. Nordbye as federal judge in that state.

President Hoover disregarded Sen. Schall's list of candidates in making the appointment yesterday. Schall has characterized the action as a "studied affront to me" on the part of the attorney general. In a senate speech made shortly after the nomination was submitted, the blind senator called upon his colleagues for support in opposing confirmation.

The nomination then was turned over to the judiciary committee as a matter of routine. A thorough airing over the entire dispute is likely when hearings are held on the appointment.

Mr. Hoover's nomination of Nordbye came as a climax to a dispute which arose when the attorney general refused to approve Schall's recommendation of Ernest Michel for the vacancy. The senator insisted upon his candidate and asserted he was backed by the entire Minnesota congressional delegation.

The president endorsed the stand taken by Mitchell himself as a Minnesotan and asked Schall to submit a list of 10 other possible appointees.

The senator finally capitulated on Thursday and sent such a list to the White House. In the meantime, however, Mr. Hoover submitted another list of candidates to Schall with a request for information "as to their qualifications." When no reply was received, the president announced Nordbye's nomination.

Schall said the administration had informed him the justice department was lacking in information regarding his candidates. He asserted, however, all of them had lived in Minnesota a life time.

"I will not lend myself," the senator said, "to the scheme of the attorney general in filling federal judgeships in my state with his 'right minded' sort whose sympathies are not with the common man, whose legal bent and natural inclinations are property right minded to the exclusion of humanity."

SENATE ACQUIRES THE COMMISSION TESTIMONY, ETC.

UPON WHICH WICKERSHAM AND COLLEAGUES BASED PROHIBITION REPORT

MATERIAL SUBMITTED IN RESPONSE TO RESOLUTION OF SEN. TYDINGS, MD.

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 21.—The large boxes of evidence and testimony upon which the Wickersham commission in part based its prohibition report were in the possession of the senate today and contained, among many things:

1. Prohibition Director Woodcock's "confession" that prohibition cannot prohibit.

2. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt's legal opinion that section 29 of the Volstead act represented the "thought of congress to lift the heavy hand of the Volstead act from interfering with family habits so far as possible."

3. Testimony of a dozen labor leaders, heard in a single day, against prohibition as now constituted.

4. Special Investigator Henry S. Dennison's statement that "there has not been yet any true test of the prohibition laws."

5. Reports of enforcement conditions in 32 states.

The material was submitted in response to a resolution offered by Sen. Tydings, democrat, Maryland, in compliance with the expressed privilege stated in the resolution, Chairman Wickersham informed the senate in a letter covering that much information obtained in confidence had been withheld. This unrevealed material apparently included testimony of Secretary Mellon, Assistant Secretary Lowman, former Prohibition Administrator Doran and Attorney General Mitchell. They were not represented among the 43 items sent the senate.

Woodcock's "confession," which he conceded would be challenged, in no wise represented an opinion by him that the prohibition experiment must fail. He contended, rather, that prohibition cannot actually and completely prohibit consumption of alcoholic beverages. He suggested recognition of that fact in the federal enforcement policy by a system of what he termed "home option."

With specified qualifications, "home option" would permit manufacture and consumption of liquor by any householder without molestation. Woodcock suggested that this might provide the final solution of prohibition.

After outlining what prohibition could and could not be expected to achieve, the prohibition director wrote to the commission:

"I therefore suggest, in reasoning which has much of sophistry but a gleam of common sense and of prophecy of what may be the final evolution of this troublesome question, not state, county or district option, but home option."

"Any of the other plans of settlement leaves a troublesome and die-hard minority. Home option, about the same as individual opinion, eliminates the minority."

"It could be put into effect by a simple administrative policy—to make no effort to overcome the difficulties that legally exist in getting evidence, as to violations in the home."

"The householder could not claim the right to buy or sell liquor. But if he possesses liquor, or makes liquor in his home, and in such a way as not to be observed by the public, this policy would require that he be not disturbed."

"If he fails in a single public duty, breaks the peace in any way, fails to take care of his family, or fails to keep himself fit to perform any public duty, the state steps in and punishes."

"This plan makes unlawful all commerce in liquor, does not compel the dry to support a state dispensary and leaves the wet in full enjoyment of any rights he believes he has which may be exercised without affecting anyone else."

"I make this suggestion as seemingly logical but which may run counter to the fundamental principles of government that any plan must be practical."

Woodcock's attitude was particularly interesting in view of the position taken by Mrs. Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition prosecutions. Mrs. Willebrandt has been acting as counsel for Fruit Industries, Ltd., whose marketing of grape concentrates fermentable into wine has roused some dry organizations to demand that section 29 of the Volstead act be amended.

What the prohibition director proposes in part as wise policy is urged by Mrs. Willebrandt as strictly legal.

"It is clear from the circumstances surrounding the inserting of this exception into the act," she said of section 29 of the Volstead act, "that it was the intent of congress to give to the householder all the leniency as to fermented beverages that properly could be given."

"Brewed or distilled beverages were made by commercial concerns and consequently congress extended no privilege to them."

Woodcock contended in a paper described as a "preliminary study" that

12 ALBANIANS SEIZED IN PLOT TO KILL KING

Vienna, Austria, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—A group of 12 Albanians, including Hassan Bey Prishtina, chief foe of King Zog of Albania, were seized by Austrian police today in connection with an attempt to assassinate the king here last night.

Prishtina has long been known as the leader of a political group which have sworn vengeance on the Albanian monarch, who narrowly escaped death when one aide was killed and another wounded as they were leaving the Vienna opera house.

The roundup of other foes of King Zog in Austria continued. Police said the men testified they had tried to kill the king because they considered him "a traitor to Albania."

SENATOR SCHALL TO FIGHT NORDBYE CONFIRMATION

POLITICAL CONTROVERSY OVER MINNESOTA PATRONAGE TO SENATE COMMITTEE

SCHALL DECLARES PRESIDENT'S ACTION AS A "STUDIED AFFRONT TO ME"

Washington, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—The long drawn out political controversy over Minnesota patronage had been taken before the senate judiciary committee today, with Sen. Schall, republican, Minnesota, planning a determined fight to block confirmation of Gunnar H. Nordbye as federal judge in that state.

President Hoover disregarded Sen. Schall's list of candidates in making the appointment yesterday. Schall has characterized the action as a "studied affront to me" on the part of the attorney general. In a senate speech made shortly after the nomination was submitted, the blind senator called upon his colleagues for support in opposing confirmation.

The nomination then was turned over to the judiciary committee as a matter of routine. A thorough airing over the entire dispute is likely when hearings are held on the appointment.

Mr. Hoover's nomination of Nordbye came as a climax to a dispute which arose when the attorney general refused to approve Schall's recommendation of Ernest Michel for the vacancy. The senator insisted upon his candidate and asserted he was backed by the entire Minnesota congressional delegation.

The president endorsed the stand taken by Mitchell himself as a Minnesotan and asked Schall to submit a list of 10 other possible appointees.

The senator finally capitulated on Thursday and sent such a list to the White House. In the meantime, however, Mr. Hoover submitted another list of candidates to Schall with a request for information "as to their qualifications." When no reply was received, the president announced Nordbye's nomination.

Schall said the administration had informed him the justice department was lacking in information regarding his candidates. He asserted, however, all of them had lived in Minnesota a life time.

"I will not lend myself," the senator said, "to the scheme of the attorney general in filling federal judgeships in my state with his 'right minded' sort whose sympathies are not with the common man, whose legal bent and natural inclinations are properly right minded to the exclusion of humanity."

LABOR SPEECHES WILL GO ON AIR

SENATE ACQUIRES THE COMMISSION TESTIMONY, ETC.

UPON WHICH WICKERSHAM AND COLLEAGUES BASED PROHIBITION REPORT

MATERIAL SUBMITTED IN RESPONSE TO RESOLUTION OF SEN. TYDINGS, MD.

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 21.—The large boxes of evidence and testimony upon which the Wickersham commission in part based its prohibition report were in the possession of the senate today and contained, among many things:

1. Prohibition Director Woodcock's "confession" that prohibition cannot prohibit.

2. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt's legal opinion that section 29 of the Volstead act represented the "thought of congress to lift the heavy hand of the Volstead act from interfering with family habits so far as possible."

3. Testimony of a dozen labor leaders, heard in a single day, against prohibition as now constituted.

4. Special Investigator Henry S. Dennison's statement that "there has not been yet any true test of the prohibition laws."

5. Reports of enforcement conditions in 32 states.

The material was submitted in response to a resolution offered by Sen. Tydings, democrat, Maryland, in compliance with the expressed privilege stated in the resolution, Chairman Wickersham informed the senate in a letter covering that much information obtained in confidence had been withheld. This unrevealed material apparently included testimony of Secretary Mellon, Assistant Secretary Lowman, former Prohibition Administrator Doran and Attorney General Mitchell. They were not represented among the 43 items sent the senate.

Woodcock's "confession," which he conceded would be challenged, in no wise represented an opinion by him that the prohibition experiment must fail. He contended, rather, that prohibition cannot actually and completely prohibit consumption of alcoholic beverages. He suggested recognition of that fact in the federal enforcement policy by a system of what he termed "home option."

With specified qualifications, "home option" would permit manufacture and consumption of liquor by any householder without molestation. Woodcock suggested that this might provide the final solution of prohibition.

After outlining what prohibition could and could not be expected to achieve, the prohibition director wrote to the commission:

"I therefore suggest, in reasoning which has much of sophistry but a gleam of common sense and of prophecy of what may be the final evolution of this troublesome question, not state, county or district option, but home option."

"Any of the other plans of settlement leaves a troublesome and die-hard minority. Home option, about the same as individual opinion, eliminates the minority."

"It could be put into effect by a simple administrative policy—to make no effort to overcome the difficulties that legally exist in getting evidence, as to violations in the home."

"The householder could not claim the right to buy or sell liquor. But if he possesses liquor, or makes liquor in his home, and in such a way as not to be observed by the public, this policy would require that he be not disturbed."

"If he fails in a single public duty, breaks the peace in any way, fails to take care of his family, or fails to keep himself fit to perform any public duty, the state steps in and punishes."

"This plan makes unlawful all commerce in liquor, does not compel the dry to support a state dispensary and leaves the wet in full enjoyment of all rights he believes he has which may be exercised without affecting anyone else."

"I make this suggestion as seemingly logical but which may run counter to the fundamental principles of government that any plan must be practical."

Woodcock's attitude was particularly interesting in view of the position taken by Mrs. Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition prosecutions. Mrs. Willebrandt has been acting as counsel for Fruit Industries, Ltd., whose marketing of grape concentrates fermentable into wine has roused some dry organizations to demand that section 29 of the Volstead act be amended.

What the prohibition director proposes in part as wise policy is urged by Mrs. Willebrandt as strictly legal.

"It is clear from the circumstances surrounding the inserting of this exception into the act," she said of section 29 of the Volstead act, "that it was the intent of congress to give to the householder all the leniency as to fermented beverages that properly could be given."

"Brewed or distilled beverages were made by commercial concerns and consequently congress extended no privilege to them."

Woodcock contended in a paper described as a "preliminary study" that

OH THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

Copyright 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Men are spending more money each year on country and golf clubs, they are driving better motor cars and wearing better clothes. Women being unable to spur them on to harder work and bigger incomes, and having difficulty prying loose from them the old time percentage of their incomes, have had to go to work to keep up with their men.

That's the idea that comes from a lady in Santa Monica, and she seems enlightened on the subject.

She says men who have working wives want them home and those who have them at home don't like to admit that their wives are mere home makers. She says:

"You wonder in your column the other day, what husbands think about women working outside the home. They are like women—always wanting what they haven't got. If the wives work they want them at home. If they are at home they envy the men with wives who have jobs and salaries and who can talk business with them. 'Humans are funny. Always wanting what they haven't got. But everything about the home today is changing. Most men are more interested in lodges and clubs and new motor cars than in homes. They dress better than they did and the men able to earn more than enough to supply their own needs is decreasing. Trying to inspire a man to earn lots of money and then to make him part with some of it when he gets it is such a hard job women have gone to work for themselves.

"Today men discuss their wives' business accomplishments with the same pride that women used to show in their husbands. They don't like to admit that their wives do nothing but keep house. 'One evening last year my husband and I called on some friends and I remarked that I was working on a book. The wife we were visiting is of the old school. Makes her own and her daughter's clothes, bakes wonderful things, even does her washing with electric washer, irons with a mangle, has eight rooms in her home and cares for them herself. She's attractive and well dressed. And is she busy???

Boy!

"On this night she said that she too had a long suppressed desire to write. Next day her husband sent her a fine typewriter. He told her if she wrote a story and finished it he would give her a fine new silver fox fur. The other night they called here and the husband said in this whole year she had written two letters on the typewriter. I told him she was pretty busy but he didn't seem to listen.

"I marvel at men. They appear to think that women are some sort of super human being who have been geared to function in high perfectly day in and day out. If this girl, who is the only perfect wife and mother I've ever known, parked herself at her machine and did a story she would have to neglect something else and her husband would be the first to notice it and squawk.

"There's one thing sure, people do not know what they want or when they are well off. It's a great life if you don't weaken. Best wishes for your continued success.—D. M."

That's the penalty that unselfish women pay for their devotion only they don't call it a penalty and they aren't complaining. They are glad of the chance to give and they aren't wondering when the returns are coming in.

A brother-in-law is defined by Webster's dictionary as either the brother of one's husband or wife, or the husband of one's sister; sometimes the name is given inaccurately to the husband of one's wife or husband's sister.

OH THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

Copyright 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Men are spending more money each year on country and golf clubs, they are driving better motor cars and wearing better clothes. Women being unable to spur them on to harder work and bigger incomes, and having difficulty prying loose from them the old time percentage of their incomes, have had to go to work to keep up with their men.

That's the idea that comes from a lady in Santa Monica, and she seems enlightened on the subject.

She says men who have working wives want them home and those who have them at home don't like to admit that their wives are mere home makers.

You wonder in your column the other day, what husbands think about women working outside the home. They are like women—always wanting what they haven't got. If the wives work they want them at home. If they are at home they envy the men with wives who have jobs and salaries and who can talk business with them.

"Humans are funny. Always wanting what they haven't got. But everything about the home today is changing. Most men are more interested in lodges and clubs and new motor cars than in homes. They dress better than they did and the men able to earn more than enough to supply their own needs is decreasing. Trying to inspire a man to earn lots of money and then to make him part with some of it when he gets it is such a hard job women have gone to work for themselves.

"Today men discuss their wives' business accomplishments with the same pride that women used to show in their husbands.

They don't like to admit that their wives do nothing but keep house.

"One evening last year my husband and I called on some friends and I remarked that I was working on a book. The wife we were visiting is of the old school. Makes her own and her daughter's clothes, bakes wonderful things, even does her washing with electric washer, irons with a mangle, has eight rooms in her home and cares for them herself. She's attractive and well dressed. And is she busy???

Boy!
"On this night she said that she too had a long suppressed desire to write. Next day her husband sent her a fine typewriter. He told her if she wrote a story and finished it he would give her a fine new silver fox fur. The other night they called here and the husband said in this whole year she had written two letters on the typewriter. I told him she was pretty busy but he didn't seem to listen.

"I marvel at men. They appear to think that women are some sort of super human being who have been geared to function in high perfectly day in and day out. If this girl, who is the only perfect wife and mother I've ever known, parked herself at her machine and did a story she would have to neglect something else and her husband would be the first to notice it and squawk.

"There's one thing sure, people do not know what they want or when they are well off. It's a great life if you don't weaken. Best wishes for your continued success—D. M."

That's the penalty that unselfish women pay for their devotion only they don't call it a penalty and they aren't complaining. They are glad of the chance to give and they aren't wondering when the returns are coming in.

Brothers-in Law

A brother-in-law is defined by Webster's dictionary as either the brother of one's husband or wife, or the husband of one's sister; sometimes the name is given inaccurately to the husband of one's wife or husband's sister.

courts and enforcement agents should be expected only to:

1. Stop public sale, manufacture and use of intoxicating liquor.
2. Stop transportation in quantities larger than can be concealed on the person.

He argued that "courts and agents ought not to be expected to prevent the making of liquor in the home for non-commercial purposes" nor "to stop the consumption of such liquors any more than the courts and police are expected to stop a game of bridge in a private home with no commercial profit."

"This conception of the reasonable results to be expected from enforcement will be challenged," Woodcock wrote. "It is a confession that prohibition cannot prohibit."

"The answer is that no more ought to be expected of enforcement than of other statutes making it unlawful to do certain things."

Woodcock opposed federal liquor dispensaries and said that if the 18th amendment were changed the responsibility for liquor sales should be on the states. He added that for congress to attempt to solve the problem merely by repealing the Volstead act would be "unthinkable."

Reports of the investigations of Denison and Albert E. Sawyer in behalf of the commission differed from Woodcock's conclusions in that they thought the small violator could not be ignored in any enforcement plan. Among their recommendations were:

1. Sixty per cent increase in number of prohibition agents.
2. Abolition of the practice of requiring agents to bring in liquor in order to obtain evidence. Denison said it had a bad effect on the agent and on public sentiment.
3. Extreme care in issuing industrial alcohol permits.
4. Closer co-operation between permit and enforcement authorities.
5. Adoption of a nation-wide system for exchange of information relating to criminal activities, and creation of a clearing house for the information in Washington.
6. Creation of a plain clothes squad to operate at intervals over various border areas to supplement the uniformed force.

Ineffective enforcement was ascribed in part to friction among three treasury department bureaus—customs, coast guard and prohibition. This referred to conditions prior to July 1, 1930, when enforcement was transferred to the justice department.

The investigators, however, concluded personnel has improved appreciably. They held that bribery largely had been eliminated.

The dozen representatives of labor who testified before the commission on May 22, 1930, made general observations that:

1. Workers have been driven by prohibition to "hard" liquor and inferior home brew.
2. Legalization of beer with greater alcoholic content would be desirable.
3. Absolute prohibition creates resentment, cannot be enforced and causes disrespect for law.
4. More women and young people are drinking "hard" liquor.
5. Prohibition had not generally changed workers' habits.

John H. Morehead, United States minister to Sweden, told the commission the Swedish control system would be workable in this country "with some changes."

TO CENTRALIZE ALL FORCES IN TEMPERANCE WORK

16 PROHIBITION LEADERS HOLDING SECRET SESSION IN WASHINGTON

GROUP COMPRISES SUB-COMMITTEE OF 33 DRY ORGANIZATIONS

Washington, Feb. 21.—(UP)—Sixteen prohibition leaders met in secret here today to adopt a plan of organization to centralize all temperance forces.

For two days the group, comprising a sub-committee of 33 dry organizations, will consider ways and means. On Monday night it will submit its conclusions to a general conference of organizations supporting the 18th amendment.

Among questions under consideration by the board of strategy is the selection of a "czar" around whom the prohibition movement can be coordinated. Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, prominent dry leader, said today.

Dr. Dinwiddie explained that the sub-committee was selected some weeks ago for the purpose of working out the most effective method of coordinating the groups behind prohibition. These groups are now widely scattered among 33 different organizations.

The "home option" enforcement plan proposed by prohibition director Amos W. W. Woodcock, in his report to the Wickersham commission filed yesterday with the senate drew attention among those attending the conference.

Recalling a statement which he and 15 other dry leaders signed last summer, Dr. Dinwiddie said he believes it was in substantial agreement with Woodcock's plan not to interfere with liquor in the home.

"It has long been the belief of some prohibitionists that the home is not the proper place for a federal enforcement agency to attempt to reach," Dr. Dinwiddie said, "and a number of dry leaders signed a statement to this effect last summer. I shall study Woodcock's ideas and prepare a fuller statement of my views."

The statement of Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt that the law exempts from prosecution any person making wine in the home for home use was said by Dinwiddie to confirm his understanding of the Volstead act.

Wayne B. Wheeler, late superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, wrote section 29 of the Volstead act with the express intention of relieving wine making in the home from the danger of federal prosecution, Dinwiddie said.

Vigorous opposition to Woodcock's home option plan was voiced by Dr. D. Lee Colvin, chairman of the prohibition national committee, New York City, who said it would amount to partial nullification of the 18th amendment.

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 21.—(UP)—The condition of Dame Nellie Melba remained grave today.

MONGREL DOG MOURNS LOSS OF PLAYMATE

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(UP)—A mongrel dog sat staring today at a fading blotch on the 48th street pavement and kept residents awake as he howled a requiem for his terrier playmate who had died there a few hours earlier.

The dogs were romping together in the street last night. The terrier was clean and sleek. He apparently was somebody's pet. The mongrel lean and ugly, was as happy as his pampered friend. Their play ended suddenly when an automobile hit the terrier.

A crowd began to gather as the mongrel sat beside the body of his pal and howled. If anyone approached too near, the mongrel growled and snapped at them. The crowd grew to several hundred. They stood in a circle about the howling dog and the body of his pal.

Policemen lassoed the mongrel and dragged him away, but freed him after removing the terrier's body. The dog raced back to the spot which his friend's blood had marked upon the pavement. The requiem began.

Officers said they would not drive him away unless someone complained. None did and four hours later he still was there, still howling.

STRENGTH SHOWN IN AUTO STOCKS

CONTINUES TO FEATURE STOCK MARKET IN SHORT SESSION TODAY

By ELMER C. WALZER (United Press Financial Editor)

New York, Feb. 21.—United States Steel rose to a new high for the year on the stock exchange today, touching 149 1-4, up 1 3-8 from the previous close. The whole market continued its march into new high territory for 1931.

Among today's highs in addition to Steel were Auburn Automobile, 209, up 10; General Electric, 51½, up 1½, and American Smelting, 55½, up 2 1-8. Sales in the first half hour totalled 600,000 shares against 700,000 yesterday.

Hupp made a new high for the year at 13, up 1-4 on 4,000 shares and Chrysler made a new 1931 top at 22 1-4, up ½. Packard also was in new high territory since last year at 11 5-8, up 1-4. Hudson rose slightly.

When Death Occurs Away From Home

In the course of a year we receive many inquiries concerning the necessary steps for interment when the deceased must be brought from a distance.

So seldom does this emergency arise in any family that the situation seems to present overwhelming difficulties.

But difficult as it may seem to the inexperienced, it is but a part of the day's work to the competent mortician.

He knows exactly the procedure to be followed when a body must be brought from a distance. He is trained to relieve the bereaved of every responsibility and no situation is so complex that the broad scope of his services cannot compass it.

Courage and Calm Independence

The state of the Colonies demanded the resourcefulness, the courage, the calm judgment, and the character of its greatest men. George Washington had all of these qualities to a greater extent than any other man upon American soil. He was a natural leader and instilled into his countrymen that spirit of confidence and devotion which made the winning of the War of the Revolution a possibility. His leadership overcame conditions so dispiriting and so discouraging that only he, of all the great men of his time, could have established our independence and enduring government.

5. Adoption of a nation-wide system for exchange of information relating to criminal activities, and creation of a clearing house for the information in Washington.

6. Creation of a plain clothes squad to operate at intervals over various border areas to supplement the uniformed force.

Ineffective enforcement was ascribed in part to friction among three treasury department bureaus—customs, coast guard and prohibition. This referred to conditions prior to July 1, 1930, when enforcement was transferred to the justice department.

The investigators, however, concluded personnel had improved appreciably. They held that bribery largely had been eliminated.

The dozen representatives of labor who testified before the commission on May 22, 1930, made general observations that:

1. Workers have been driven by prohibition to "hard" liquor and inferior home brew.
2. Legalization of beer with greater alcoholic content would be desirable.
3. Absolute prohibition creates resentment, cannot be enforced and causes disrespect for law.
4. More women and young people are drinking "hard" liquor.
5. Prohibition had not generally changed workers' habits.

John H. Morehead, United States minister to Sweden, told the commission the Swedish control system would be workable in this country "with some changes."

TO CENTRALIZE ALL FORCES IN TEMPERANCE WORK

16 PROHIBITION LEADERS HOLDING SECRET SESSION IN WASHINGTON

GROUP COMPRIZES SUB-COMMITTEE OF 33 DRY ORGANIZATIONS

Washington, Feb. 21.—(UP)—Sixteen prohibition leaders met in secret here today to adopt a plan of organization to centralize all temperance forces.

For two days the group, comprising a sub-committee of 33 dry organizations, will consider ways and means. On Monday night it will submit its conclusions to a general conference of organizations supporting the 18th amendment.

Among questions under consideration by the board of strategy is the selection of a "car" around whom the prohibition movement can be coordinated. Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, prominent dry leader, said today:

Dr. Dinwiddie explained that the sub-committee was selected some weeks ago for the purpose of working out the most effective method of coordinating the groups behind prohibition. These groups are now widely scattered among 33 different organizations.

The "home option" enforcement plan proposed by prohibition director Amos W. W. Woodcock, in his report to the Wickersham commission filed yesterday with the senate drew attention among those attending the conference.

Recalling a statement which he and 15 other dry leaders signed last summer, Dr. Dinwiddie said he believes it was in substantial agreement with Woodcock's plan not to interfere with liquor in the home.

"It has long been the belief of some prohibitionists that the home is not the proper place for a federal enforcement agency to attempt to reach," Dr. Dinwiddie said, "and a number of dry leaders signed a statement to this effect last summer. I shall study Woodcock's ideas and prepare a fuller statement of my views."

The statement of Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt that the law exempts from prosecution any person making wine in the home for home use was said by Dinwiddie to confirm his understanding of the Volstead act.

Wayne B. Wheeler, late superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, wrote Section 29 of the Volstead act with the express intention of relieving wine making in the home from the danger of federal prosecution, Dinwiddie said.

Vigorous opposition to Woodcock's home option plan was voiced by Dr. D. Lee Colvin, chairman of the prohibition national committee, New York City, who said it would amount to partial nullification of the 18th amendment.

MONGREL DOG MOURNS LOSS OF PLAYMATE

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(UP)—A mongrel dog sat staring today at a fading blotch on the 48th street pavement and kept residents awake as he howled a requiem for his terrier playmate who had died there a few hours earlier.

The dogs were romping together in the street last night. The terrier was clean and sleek. He apparently was somebody's pet. The mongrel lean and ugly, was as happy as his pampored friend. Their play ended suddenly when an automobile hit the terrier.

A crowd began to gather as the mongrel sat beside the body of his pal and howled. If anyone approached too near, the mongrel growled and snapped at them. The crowd grew to several hundred. They stood in a circle about the howling dog and the body of his pal.

Policemen lassoed the mongrel and dragged him away, but freed him after removing the terrier's body. The dog raced back to the spot which his friend's blood had marked upon the pavement. The requiem began.

Officers said they would not drive him away unless someone complained. None did and four hours later he still was there, still howling.

The Lake Levels Situation to Date

AFTER a visit Thursday with Lieutenant-Colonel Willing, the District Engineer of the War Department at St. Paul, Frank N. Russell, Secretary of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association, has been convinced that the new regulations for the operation of the reservoirs, as issued by Secretary of War Hurley, are a wonderful step in advance. Mr. Russell says "at first I felt as though the new rulings were not going to do us much good, but after going over Colonel Willing's report I have changed my mind."

Colonel Willing gives his impression of them as follows: "You can feel as though these new regulations are a direct victory for your lake levels cause. In the past the reservoirs have been operated only taking navigation into consideration. From now on we are going to give just as much consideration to your problems as we do to navigation." Colonel Willing went so far as to say, "I really believe your worries for Gull, Pine Chain and Sandy are over."

Mr. Russell went on to say that "in the past many people have felt as though the War Department has not given the lakes proper consideration. Colonel Willing also realizes this as he says that only navigation has been considered. But he feels as though we are deserving of and are now going to receive more consideration. This year the condition of our lakes under these new regulations rests in Colonel Willing's hands. Nevertheless, I am thoroughly convinced that Colonel Willing is very sincere and acting in good faith. The people around Brainerd as well as the officers of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association will know more about this after another year has passed and we see the condition of our lakes at that time."

"Under the new regulations the minimum discharge which must be released at all times is as follows in the Brainerd territory: 10 cubic feet per second from each of Gull, Pine Chain and Sandy. Under the previous regulations they were as follows: Gull 25 cubic feet second; Pine Chain 40 cubic feet second; Sandy 40 cubic feet second. This reduces the minimum discharge 70 cubic feet per second provided Colonel Willing keeps the discharge to the minimum when sewerage is not demanding higher discharges. I believe as nearly as possible this will be the case as this reduction was his suggestion to the War Department."

"In his report to the War Department he said, 'It is apparent that the purpose for which the reservoirs were first constructed, that of navigation, has become of relatively less importance.' The citizens of Minnesota heartily agree with this remark of Colonel Willing. He further says, 'With the Hastings Dam in operation no assistance to navigation will be needed from the reservoirs until the 9-foot project is completed.' In commenting on the withdrawals in the past as compared with the future he says, 'It cannot be expected, however, that future conditions will require operations resembling that of the past.' There seems to be no question in Colonel Willing's report but that the discharges from the reservoirs are now going to be tremendously reduced and the lakes built up."

The transition period under the new regulations is explained by Mr. Russell as follows: "The raising of the minimum levels leaves about 28 billion cubic feet of water more in the lakes than under the previous minimum levels. The transition period extends from now until January 1 on which there is 10 billion cubic feet of water in the reservoirs more than the above 28 billion. When this amount will be in storage depends upon the amount of rain and snow we have, also warm weather which causes higher evaporation. The withdrawals are also gauged by the moisture available as they can be reduced during wet periods."

"During the transition period Colonel Willing has authority to make such withdrawals from the reservoirs so as to take care of the sewage problem of the Twin Cities by having the following maximum flows at St. Paul. During June 3,000 cubic feet second, July 4,000 cubic feet second, August 3,500 cubic feet second, September 2,500 cubic feet second. These figures were requested by the Metropolitan Drainage Commission at the St. Paul hearing of the War Department and included in Colonel Willing's report to Washington. Of course, during wet periods less water will be needed from the reservoirs to give the above volume at St. Paul as the other streams that empty into the Mississippi will then provide a larger volume. I believe that we of northern Minnesota do not desire to hold up water that is needed during the summer months for sewage disposal as it exists in the Twin Cities. Nevertheless, I believe the Twin Cities deserve to be condemned for the unbusiness-like manner in which they are handling their sewage problem. Every year that they quarrel between themselves on the cost of this work, puts off the completion of it that much further. Neither the War Department nor the Twin Cities themselves should ask withdrawals from these reservoirs much longer to satisfy two quarrelsome cities that cannot agree. This condition has existed for several years and it is about time that either the State Legislature or Board of Health stepped in to tell them what they must do."

"In addition to the flow requested for sewage disposal the District Engineer has authority during the transition period to take additional water for navigation. Nevertheless, he said in his report that he believed no additional water would be required for this purpose. After the transition period the District Engineer has no right to withdraw below the new minimum levels more than the minimum discharge as mentioned in the first part of this article unless specifically directed by the Chief of Engineers at Washington. Of course if this latter authority was necessary from Congress the lakes cause would be more secure. Nevertheless, the reasons for making such additional discharges as given in Colonel Willing's report to Washington were very remote, and Colonel Willing will most probably be very fair in the matter."

"One paragraph of the new regulations says, 'During the transition period the District Engineer shall make every effort by careful operation of the reservoirs, to maintain the reservoirs at stages as high as consistent with the requirements of these regulations.' This paragraph was suggested by Colonel Willing in his report which makes me feel as though Colonel Willing is acting in good faith."

"All of the minimum and maximum figures were adopted as recommended by the Minnesota Lake Levels Association except the Pine Chain. Colonel Willing in his recommendation reduced the minimum for Pine Chain from 11 feet to 9 feet. He advised me that the purpose of this was to get more storage in that section of the reservoirs closest to the Twin Cities. As requested by the Lake Levels Association the War Department reduced the maximum stage on the Pine Chain. This was not done on any other lake. This helps the property owners who have been troubled by having their banks washed down. On the other hand the 9 foot minimum does not give a satisfactory channel between the lakes in this chain. The War Department should either raise this minimum or dredge between the lakes, making navigation between them possible. Colonel Willing promised that he would look into this angle and write me on it."

"Even though these new regulations are not exactly what we want, they are undoubtedly a victory for the lake cause. Colonel Willing now realizes our problem and seems willing to cooperate. He can now do it and still live up to the orders he operates the reservoirs by. Otherwise legislation will be needed to solve the problem. This should now be easy with the foundation laid as firm as it is."

Mr. Russell as secretary of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association wants to thank the many people who have helped to secure this recognition of the rights of the people in the reservoir district by the War Department. Special mention is deserving Congressman Harold Knutson who has fought and is still fighting to help his constituents; Colonel W. T. Mollison, vice president of the Lake Levels Association who is interested because of a summer home on Sandy Lake and has put in weeks of his time on the fight; Frank Heywood, president of the Lake Levels Association, who has also put in weeks of his time to help win.

The Brainerd Daily Dispatch is thanked for the manner in which they have kept press and public correctly informed on the problem.

To eliminate the inconvenience of some students having two final examinations in one day, the administrative committee has extended the four day examination period at the University of Minnesota to six days. The new plan will go into effect in a year.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Nancy Hollenbeck, young, vibrant and beautiful, reluctantly drops her latest beau, Mat Tully, when her mother warns her against marrying a poor man "as she did." At the rich Craig's house party, Nancy receives the attentions of Jack Beamer, handsome sportsman, unhappily married. Nancy and Louise, her sister, are called home. Their rich Aunt Ellie has arrived. She promises the girls a trip to Yosemite. Nancy hears from Jack Beamer. She pictures herself as the second Mrs. Beamer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

LOUISE's eyes followed her sister's to the man who, cigarette in hand, stood looking around the spacious lobby.

He wore the olive drab uniform of a ranger. His boots and hat were dusty, even his impudent, smiling face was dirty; but for all the dirt and fatigue he was the youngest, freshest, most virile creature in the room. From his sunburnt blond hair to the tips of his old riding boots he sparkled. His bright blue eyes twinkled; white teeth, under the stubby toothbrush mustache, flashed as he encompassed the place in an all-enveloping, supremely good-natured grin. Then, with a friendly wave for a passing bellhop, he turned suddenly and went out, banging the door energetically behind him.

Nancy whistled. "The first real man I've seen. And it's leaving." Lou smiled understandingly.

New Prey

Nancy was incorrigible—in the dumps over one man one minute and upon her toes for another the next. Still it was a good sign. Maybe she would forget Jack Beamer and his wildest ideas of marrying him after he got his divorce if she got interested in somebody else. "Oh, he'll be back. Those rangers are in and out all the time. And he is attractive. I'd like to know him myself, honestly I would!" she said.

"I saw him first!" Nancy laughed. The old bubbling, lolling laugh, and her eyes widened and darkened with excitement. "Now I'm going to find out all about him. Watch me. By tomorrow we'll be intimate friends!"

Tomorrow came and went without any sign of him, but Nancy didn't give up hope. She had found out that his name was Roger DeCatur, that he was "in and out" of the hotel every day. The knowledge got her through the day.

It was one of the longest, dreariest days that either of them ever remembered. Here they were, in one of the wonder spots of the world, not seeing an inch beyond the hotel windows. Surrounded with every luxury, they were too bored to enjoy it. Aunt Ellie spoke vaguely of "making a tour of the valley"—in a sight-seeing bus presumably—a little later, but for the present the spacious veranda, with its comfortable rockers, was more to her liking.

Here, in the warm, dry air, she rocked and crocheted, and comfortably complained: "It's robbery what they charge here. I don't know why people come. I was never one for this vacation nonsense. A body can be just as comfortable at home. More so. As soon as I felt the bed I knew I wouldn't sleep. The food isn't so much either. Filling but not nourishing. You overeat, but it doesn't do you any good. I wonder if they'll have turkey for dinner? What time is it, Louise?"

Only four o'clock? I suppose tea is extra. Just go in and inquire, Nancy. "NANCY!" Inquire? Inquire? don't order it unless it's included. Just inquire. . . . Do you think she understood? Go after her, Louise. I don't want to spend money for tea unless it's . . . HURRY! She'll have it ordered!"

That was about the only time they got away from her side together. One or the other, preferably both, had to sit right there and rock and listen.

Nancy wriggled and twisted like a schoolgirl, eyes expectantly fixed on the door, the road, the laughing groups that came and went. Impossible that they didn't know a soul! That not one of their friends was passing. . . . Not a word from Jack Beamer, either. Too soon for a letter, but he could telephone. Still, one had to be careful. . . . Anita could make it very uncomfortable if she wanted to . . . suppose she was named as correspondent. . . .

No Adventures

That nightmare thought sent a chill right down to the tips of the new scarlet pumps . . . mama . . . the newspapers. . . . what would people think? "Oh, dear, I was never meant for an adventure. I almost wish I'd never met Jack. . . . at least until he had got his divorce, but then someone else would have snapped him up. . . . Oh, if mama were only like other mothers, good at managing! Like Mrs. Craig. She's just practically nailed Gil Neal for May Belle. May Belle never has to do a thing but look innocent. But if I sit back and wait for things to happen, I'll end like Louise, or worse than that, because I haven't got Lou's disposition . . . poor Lou, she'd be stunning if she had the right clothes; she can't get by with trash like I can. . . . And in spite of herself Nancy brightened and preened a little because her homemade white georgette was effective, and every paterfamilias who passed found an excuse for lingering to give her a second look.

Louise, who lacked Nancy's natural buoyancy of spirit, was denied even the consolation of dreams. She saw herself just as they really were, poor relations chained to the side of a grotesque old person, who had brought herself and them here just to spite a sick husband. Hospital, indeed! If Joseph was going to insist on listening to that nonsense from his physician, Aunt Ellie would show him she needed a rest cure, too. He wouldn't be the only one to spend money foolishly. If he did, so would she! She had picked the most expensive place she could think of, and had brought her nieces to help run up the bill.

So here they were, eating and sleeping and sitting within the little space of the hotel while flowers bloomed—patches of gold and purple and scarlet—near enough to smell them on the soft little wind that came down from the mountains. While waterfalls pounded (you could hear them in the quiet of the night) and thin, curly trails wound their almost invisible way beyond the low-lying trees, beyond the bare, painted rocks, to the pinnacles of distant jagged peaks.

"As comfortable a home as any man ever had," Aunt Ellie's cracked, whining voice went right along, biting acidly into Louise's thoughts, "and the best mattress in the market. Curly white hair, picked over once a year, mind you, and he prefers a hospital cot! So I said to myself, 'Well, Joseph Watson, I said, if it's money you want to spend, I can help you, same as I've helped you save all these years.'"

Left Behind

"Yes, Aunt Ellie." And, watching one khaki clad, laughing group after another mount sturdy mules and range, sure-footed mountain horses and go riding off into the leafy distance, Louise felt, more poignantly than ever before, that life was, indeed, going off without her. Here, with beauty, adventure, romance almost within reach of her finger tips, she had to sit rocking on a porch with an old lady. Her very muscles ached with cramped longing, her slim feet, planted so firmly and precisely in their neat brown slippers, itched to go. She wanted to run screaming and panting, after every laughing, outgoing party with slickers and lunches strapped on their saddles. "Wait—wait for me! Take me—take me, too!"

But being Louise, unaccustomed to giving way to mad longings, she sat, a pleasant enough picture in fresh rose colored linen and slick, satiny brown hair, rocking on the veranda, being "nice" to Aunt Ellie. Exerting herself to be still nicer, so that Aunt Ellie would not notice that when a dusty ranger with twinkling blue eyes stamped up the stairs and swung into the lobby, Nancy got up and followed.

From five to six—blessed hour—Aunt Ellie took her nap. "Rest," she called it. To hear her talk she never slept. Louise closed the communicating door softly now, to shut out the resounding snores and wondered if she had time to take a walk before dinner.

"Lou, darling, is that you?" Nancy poked a rubber-capped head and a wet, roseleaf shoulder out of the bathroom shower.

"Oh, Lou—I've met him. He's wonderful. I'm going over to the camp bonfire with him tonight. Lordy, I'm glad we came. This is a wonderful place. Aunt Ellie isn't such a total loss. Lou, dear, lend me your new flesh chiffon stockings? Mine have a run or something. I've got so much to tell you. Keep Aunt Ellie off of me tonight and I'll make it up to you tomorrow, cross-my-heart-and-hope-to-die!"

The Lake Levels Situation to Date

AFTER a visit Thursday with Lieutenant-Colonel Willing, the District Engineer of the War Department at St. Paul, Frank N. Russell, Secretary of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association, has been convinced that the new regulations for the operation of the reservoirs, as issued by Secretary of War Hurley, are a wonderful step in advance. Mr. Russell says "at first I felt as though the new rulings were not going to do us much good, but after going over Colonel Willing's report I have changed my mind."

Colonel Willing gives his impression of them as follows: "You can feel as though these new regulations are a direct victory for your lake levels cause. In the past the reservoirs have been operated only taking navigation into consideration. From now on we are going to give just as much consideration to your problems as we do to navigation." Colonel Willing went so far as to say, "I really believe your worries for Gull, Pine Chain and Sandy are over."

Mr. Russell went on to say that "in the past many people have felt as though the War Department has not given the lakes proper consideration. Colonel Willing also realizes this as he says that only navigation has been considered. But he feels as though we are deserving of and are now going to receive more consideration. This year the condition of our lakes under these new regulations rests in Colonel Willing's hands. Nevertheless, I am thoroughly convinced that Colonel Willing is very sincere and acting in good faith. The people around Brainerd as well as the officers of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association will know more about this after another year has passed and we see the condition of our lakes at that time."

"Under the new regulations the minimum discharge which must be released at all times is as follows in the Brainerd territory: 10 cubic feet per second from each of Gull, Pine Chain and Sandy. Under the previous regulations they were as follows: Gull 25 cubic feet second; Pine Chain 40 cubic feet second; Sandy 40 cubic feet second. This reduces the minimum discharge 70 cubic feet per second provided Colonel Willing keeps the discharge to the minimum when sewerage is not demanding higher discharges. I believe as nearly as possible this will be the case as this reduction was his suggestion to the War Department."

"In his report to the War Department he said, 'It is apparent that the purpose for which the reservoirs were first constructed, that of navigation, has become of relatively less importance.' The citizens of Minnesota heartily agree with this remark of Colonel Willing. He further says, 'With the Hastings Dam in operation no assistance to navigation will be needed from the reservoirs until the 9-foot project is completed.' In commenting on the withdrawals in the past as compared with the future he says, 'It cannot be expected, however, that future conditions will require operations resembling that of the past.' There seems to be no question in Colonel Willing's report but that the discharges from the reservoirs are now going to be tremendously reduced and the lakes built up."

The transition period under the new regulations is explained by Mr. Russell as follows: "The raising of the minimum levels leaves about 28 billion cubic feet of water more in the lakes than under the previous minimum levels. The transition period extends from now until January 1 on which there is 10 billion cubic feet of water in the reservoirs more than the above 28 billion. When this amount will be in storage depends upon the amount of rain and snow we have, also warm weather which causes higher evaporation. The withdrawals are also gauged by the moisture available as they can be reduced during wet periods."

"During the transition period Colonel Willing has authority to make such withdrawals from the reservoirs so as to take care of the sewage problem of the Twin Cities by having the following maximum flows at St. Paul. During June 3,000 cubic feet second, July 4,000 cubic feet second, August 3,500 cubic feet second, September 2,500 cubic feet second. These figures were requested by the Metropolitan Drainage Commission at the St. Paul hearing of the War Department and included in Colonel Willing's report to Washington. Of course, during wet periods less water will be needed from the reservoirs to give the above volume at St. Paul as the other streams that empty into the Mississippi will then provide a larger volume. I believe that we of northern Minnesota do not desire to hold up water that is needed during the summer months for sewage disposal as it exists in the Twin Cities. Nevertheless, I believe the Twin Cities deserve to be condemned for the unbusiness-like manner in which they are handling their sewage problem. Every year that they quarrel between themselves on the cost of this work, puts off the completion of it that much further. Neither the War Department nor the Twin Cities themselves should ask withdrawals from these reservoirs much longer to satisfy two quarreling cities that cannot agree. This condition has existed for several years and it is about time that either the State Legislature or Board of Health stepped in to tell them what they must do."

"In addition to the flow requested for sewage disposal the District Engineer has authority during the transition period to take additional water for navigation. Nevertheless, he said in his report that he believed no additional water would be required for this purpose. After the transition period the District Engineer has no right to withdraw below the new minimum levels more than the minimum discharge as mentioned in the first part of this article unless specifically directed by the Chief of Engineers at Washington. Of course if this latter authority was necessary from Congress the lakes cause would be more secure. Nevertheless, the reasons for making such additional discharges as given in Colonel Willing's report to Washington were very remote, and Colonel Willing will most probably be very fair in the matter."

"One paragraph of the new regulations says, 'During the transition period the District Engineer shall make every effort by careful operation of the reservoirs, to maintain the reservoirs at stages as high as consistent with the requirements of these regulations.' This paragraph was suggested by Colonel Willing in his report which makes me feel as though Colonel Willing is acting in good faith."

"All of the minimum and maximum figures were adopted as recommended by the Minnesota Lake Levels Association except the Pine Chain. Colonel Willing in his recommendation reduced the minimum for Pine Chain from 11 feet to 9 feet. He advised me that the purpose of this was to get more storage in that section of the reservoirs closest to the Twin Cities. As requested by the Lake Levels Association the War Department reduced the maximum stage on the Pine Chain. This was not done on any other lake. This helps the property owners who have been troubled by having their banks washed down. On the other hand the 9 foot minimum does not give a satisfactory channel between the lakes in this chain. The War Department should either raise this minimum or dredge between the lakes, making navigation between them possible. Colonel Willing promised that he would look into this angle and write me on it."

"Even though these new regulations are not exactly what we want, they are undoubtedly a victory for the lake cause. Colonel Willing now realizes our problem and seems willing to cooperate. He can now do it and still live up to the orders he operates the reservoirs by. Otherwise legislation will be needed to solve the problem. This should now be easy with the foundation laid as firm as it is."

Mr. Russell as secretary of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association wants to thank the many people who have helped to secure this recognition of the rights of the people in the reservoir district by the War Department. Special mention is deserving Congressman Harold Knutson who has fought and is still fighting to help his constituents; Colonel W. T. Mollison, vice president of the Lake Levels Association who is interested because of a summer home on Sandy Lake and has put in weeks of his time on the fight; Frank Heywood, president of the Lake Levels Association, who has also put in weeks of his time to help win.

The Brainerd Dispatch is thanked for the manner in which they have kept press and public correctly informed on the problem.

To eliminate the inconvenience of some students having two final examinations in one day, the administrative committee has extended the four day examination period at the University of Minnesota to six days. The new plan will go into effect in a year.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Nancy Hollenbeck, young, vibrant and beautiful, reluctantly drops her latest beau, Mat Tully, when her mother warns her against marrying a poor man "as she did." At the rich Craigs' house party, Nancy receives the attentions of Jack Beamer, handsome sportsman, unhappily married. Nancy and Louise, her sister, are called home. Their rich Aunt Ellie has arrived. She promises the girls a trip to Yosemite. Nancy hears from Jack Beamer. She pictures herself as the second Mrs. Beamer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.
LOUISE'S eyes followed her sister's to the man who, cigarette in hand, stood looking around the spacious lobby.

He wore the olive drab uniform of a ranger. His boots and hat were dusty, even his impudent, smiling face was dirty; but for all the dirt and fatigue he was the youngest, freshest, most virile creature in the room. From his sunburnt blond hair to the tips of his old riding boots he sparkled. His bright blue eyes twinkled; white teeth, under the stubby toothbrush mustache, flashed as he encompassed the place in an all-enveloping, supremely good-natured grin. Then, with a friendly wave for a passing bellhop, he turned suddenly and went out, banging the door energetically behind him.

Nancy whistled. "The first real man I've seen. And it's leaving." Lou smiled understandingly.

New Prey

Nancy was incorrigible—in the dumps over one man one minute and upon her toes for another the next. Still it was a good sign. Maybe she would forget Jack Beamer and her wildest ideas of marrying him after he got his divorce if she got interested in somebody else. "Oh, he'll be back. Those rangers are in and out all the time. And he is attractive. I'd like to know him myself, honestly I would," she said.

"I saw him first!" Nancy laughed. The old bubbling, lolling laugh, and her eyes widened and darkened with excitement. "Now I'm going to find out all about him. Watch me. By tomorrow we'll be intimate friends!"

Indications are that an appeal will be made to the Minnesota Supreme Court from the order of Judge B. F. Wright entered January 12, 1931, affirming the order of the Probate Court of Crow Wing county entered April 9, 1930 disallowing the will of Katherine Gordon, deceased, Gull Lake. ## KENTUCKY DERBY AT CHURCHILL DOWNS ON SATURDAY, MAY 16

130 THREE YEAR OLDS NOMI-
NATED FOR THE 57TH
RUNNING

ALL OF LAST YEAR CANDIDATES FOR JUVENILE TURF EXCEPT JAMESTOWN

By THOMAS H. NOONE
(United Press Racing Editor)

New York, Feb. 21.—With the notable exception of George D. Widener's Jamestown, all of last year's candidates for the juvenile turf crown are among the 130 three year olds nominated for the fifty-seventh running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs on Saturday, May 16.

Foremost of these candidates is C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, winner of eight races and $156,835 last year, and favorite in the future-book speculation at odds of 6 to 1. After a heavy campaign, this great son of Pennant and Swinging climaxed his juvenile career with a superb performance in the Fimlico futurity which entitles him to be the favorite for the Blue Grass classic. This race also enabled him to top Jamestown as the leading money winner of the year among the two-year-olds.

The Belair stud, whose Gallant Fox won the event last year, has named five thoroughbreds to contest for the prize of $50,000 added, as have the Greentree Stable of Mrs. Payne Whitney and the Sagamore Stable. M. L. Schwartz has nominated four.

Only four fillies are listed as possible starters in the grueling mile and a quarter test, despite the fact that the weaker sex is given a concession of five pounds from the impost of 126 pounds.

None of these fillies enjoyed any marked success last year and it is unlikely that any of them will answer the call of the bugle on Derby Day.

Prominent among the leaders are Twenty Grand and Surf Board which are the top notchers in the Greentree Stable. Mr. Payne Whitney has named five colts to bear his silks and Twenty Grand is certain to attract considerable attention in the winter books.

The unbeaten Vander Pool, son of Campfire-Bramble Rose, conqueror of Equipoise through a disqualification, is the sole representative of the Tennessee Stable, owned by M. P. Allen. Another with an imposing record as a two-year-old, Inco, half brother to Gallant Fox, has been named by Griffin Watkins. Kentuckians will place their hopes on this home-bred which won four of his seven starts as a two-year-old.

FIELD AND TRACK, SPRING FOOTBALL ON B. H. S. PLANS

PREPARATORY TESTS FOR FUTURE TRACK, FIELD MEN INSTITUTED AT SCHOOL

OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES WILL GET UNDERWAY AT COMPLETION OF BASKETBALL

Thoughts of Brainerd high school mentors of physical training in competitive sports turned today to spring football and track and field events.

Preparatory training to classify future prospects will be undertaken indoors at the Washington high gymnasium in a plan by Rolf Melby to create early interest, thus carrying on the athletic program of the school immediately after the completion of basketball.

Each candidate for track and field will be graded in tests to determine the sport each is best suited in.

Spring training of football is also planned while initial open air practice of track and field in Gregory Park is contemplated simultaneously.

STRATEGY SEEN IN C.-I. DEFEAT

RANGERS LOSE TO STAPLES 22-18
IN WHAT MIGHT BE TERMED
"FOOLER"

Several very good reasons stood out today why Crosby-Ironton high school was defeated at Staples by Staples high last evening by the score of 22 to 18.

These are a few of them: Second string men were used chiefly. Coach Wook was saving his first stringers for the game tonight with St. Cloud Tech-High at Crosby and was taking no chances of injuries at this time, so close to the district tournament.

Coach Bill Dammann and his five first string men, Bob Wygle, Elmer Foster, Gerry Wygle, Nathan Schuetz and Marshall, were scouting the teams and Wook had no intention of giving away anything.

Wook felt that after so many games won this season it was good psychology to lose a game to get more fight out of his team. Likewise a win for Staples would make that team fight harder against Brainerd in the tournament.

The defeat was sized up by many as another strategy on the part of Wook so that opposing teams and coaches would underestimate his team for tournament time.

Locate Finest Collection of Rare Liquors in Raid in Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Detectives working for the special grand jury investigating charges of corruption among police claimed today they had found their "best evidence of graft" as well as "Chicago's finest collection of rare liquors" in a raid on Julian J. Vlamynck's saloon in the Englewood district.

Following up other successful raids and the grand jury's demand that seven policemen be suspended for accepting protection money, the detectives were looking for evidence of bootlegging, but more particularly for evidence the bootleggers were paying the district police.

"We found everything," Detective Arthur Wacholz said in telling of their fight with Vlamynck and of how he gave them the information they were looking for without them even asking for it.

"When we told him we were policemen, he raised an awful fuss," Wacholz said.

"Get out of here," he told us, "you can't arrest me. I'm paying my protection and if the captain finds out you came here he'll fire you all."

"Then," continued Wacholz, "he reached across the bar and began beatin' on me. He's about twice as big as I am and I didn't have a chance until Mike Ahern and Bob Bennett came runnin' in and stopped him by bustin' chairs over his head."

'SKETCH BOOK' IS GIVEN A CLEAN
BILL OF HEALTH

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—The cast of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," raided last week by police who said the show was "filthy," were freed today of charges of "presenting an indecent theatrical performance" by Judge Justin McCarthy.

The decision came only a few hours before the show was scheduled to end its run here to go to Milwaukee and after three days of testimony before courtroom crowds larger than the show drew in the Grand opera house.

Judge McCarthy first quashed the information and struck out the evidence against all except four of the cast. A few minutes later the charges against those four also were thrown out.

Judge McCarthy said there "wasn't a scintilla of evidence" that the show was indecent.

VETERANS' LOAN BILL IS EXAMINED BY DEPARTMENTS

FOREGONE CONCLUSION IT WILL
BE VETOED AND VETO
OVERRIDDEN

ALL BEFORE ADJOURNMENT OF
CONGRESS ON FOURTH
DAY OF MARCH

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 21.—The veterans' loan bill went the rounds of the government departments today, collecting arguments why it should not become a law.

President Hoover dispatched it to department heads for official reports before writing an apparently futile veto message upon it, probably next Tuesday or Wednesday.

That the bill will be vetoed and the veto overridden by congress before adjournment March 4 now seems a foregone conclusion. Mr. Hoover announced late yesterday he was preparing to act upon the measure the middle of next week. Sen. Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, serving as spokesman for the executive in the senate, then announced that the action of which the president spoke would be a veto.

Mechanics of administrative consideration of the bill will, however, require several days. Reports are necessary from Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Veterans' Affairs Administrator Hines. The views of both are known.

Mellon has characterized the proposal as a drain upon the already overburdened coffers of the government. Hines has said he expects 75 per cent of 3,400,000 world war veterans to borrow the full amount provided in the bill, 50 per cent of the face value of their adjusted service certificates. He has estimated this would require the treasury to raise about a billion dollars. Mr. Hoover has endorsed their views.

The compromise Muscle Shoals bill went to the senate today along the same path from the house taken by the veterans' loan bill. It will follow the veterans' bill within a few hours to President Hoover's desk.

Through a break in republican ranks, similar to that which occurred on the veterans' bill though not as wide, the Muscle Shoals measure was approved by the house last night. The vote was 216 to 151.

Senate acceptance of the compromise is foreordained, and is expected to be speedy. The bill probably will reach the White House before night.

A total of 81 republicans deserted their house leaders to support the bill, while only three democrats bolted their party to vote against it.

The vote in the house indicated rather conclusively the measure could not pass over a presidential veto. That is the fate predicted for it in many quarters, though President Hoover has given no definite indications. His opinion of such a measure, however, has been rather clearly indicated previously.

If the chief executive vetoes it, it will be cast back again into the hopper of still unsolved problems, of which it now is the most aged. Ever since the world war gave the government a huge power and nitrate plant in Alabama congress has been trying to decide what to do with the project upon which $150,000,000 has been spent.

Lord Harewood is Thrown While Hunting

London, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Lord Harewood, husband of Princess Mary, was thrown today while following the Bramham Moor hounds at Clapgate, Yorkshire.

His head struck a stone, cutting his face and injuring his right ear. Several stitches were taken.

He was taken to Harewood House in an automobile. Princess Mary, who was following her husband, did not see the accident.

PRIVATE FUNERAL

Los Angeles, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Private funeral services were held at the Beverly Hills Community church today for Louis Wolheim, motion picture actor, who died Tuesday.

Pail bearers were Samuel Goldwyn, Joseph H. Schenck, Buster Keaton and other film colony notables. Following the simple services the body was taken to the Hollywood cemetery for cremation.

Five Machine Gun Bandits
Rob Restaurant of $6,000

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Five bandits armed with machine guns held up a restaurant across from Cook county hospital, escaping with $6,000 today after terrorizing more than a score of physicians, nurses and other hospital employees.

When the bandits entered the restaurant they scattered to corners of the room and covered the patrons with machine guns as the leader of the robbers announced a holdup was being enacted.

Several very good reasons stood out today why Crosby-Ironton high school was defeated at Staples by Staples high last evening by the score of 22 to 18.

These are a few of them: Second string men were used chiefly. Coach Woock was saving his first stringers for the game tonight with St. Cloud Tech-High at Crosby and was taking no chances of injuries at this time, so close to the district tournament.

Coach Bill Dammann and his five first string men, Bob Wygle, Elmer Foster, Gerry Wygle, Nathan Schuety and Marshall, were scouting the teams and Woock had no intention of giving away anything.

Woock felt that after so many games won this season it was good psychology to lose a game to get more fight out of his team. Likewise a win for Staples would make that team fight harder against Brainerd in the tournament.

The defeat was sized up by many as another strategy on the part of Woock so that opposing teams and coaches would underestimate his team for tournament time.

Locate Finest Collection of Rare Liquors in Raid in Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Detectives working for the special grand jury investigating charges of corruption among police claimed today they had found their "best evidence of graft" as well as "Chicago's finest collection of rare liquors" in a raid on Julian J. Vlarnyck's saloon in the Englewood district.

Following up other successful raids and the grand jury's demand that seven policemen be suspended for accepting protection money, the detectives were looking for evidence of bootlegging, but more particularly for the bootleggers were paying the district police.

"We found everything," Detective Arthur Wacholz said in telling of their fight with Vlarnyck and of how he gave them the information they were looking for without them even asking for it.

"When we told him we were policemen, he raised an awful fuss," Wacholz said.

"Get out of here," he told us, "you can't arrest me. I'm paying my protection and if the captain finds out you came here he'll fire you all."

"Then," continued Wacholz, "he reached across the bar and began beatin' on me. He's about twice as big as I am and I didn't have a chance until Mike Ahern and Bob Bennett came runnin' in and stopped him by bustin' chairs over his head."

'SKETCH BOOK' IS GIVEN A CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—The cast of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," raided last week by police who said the show was "filthy," were freed today of charges of "presenting an indecent theatrical performance" by Judge Justin McCarthy.

The decision came only a few hours before the show was scheduled to end its run here to go to Milwaukee and after three days of testimony before courtroom crowds larger than the show drew in the Grand opera house.

Judge McCarthy first quashed the information and struck out the evidence against all except four of the cast. A few minutes later the charges against those four also were thrown out.

Judge McCarthy said there "wasn't a scintilla of evidence" that the show was indecent.

ESPERANTO TONGUE SEVERELY CRITICIZED

Madison, Wis., Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Esperanto, a language which Prof. Julius E. Olson of the University of Wisconsin believes is "for business purposes only" and "devoid of any living element," should not be taught at the university, he declared here today.

Olson severely criticized a bill introduced in the Wisconsin legislature by Assemblyman George Hampel, Milwaukee socialist, directing the board of regents to establish courses in Esperanto.

Five Machine Gun Bandits Rob Restaurant of $6,000

Chicago, Feb. 21.—(U.P.)—Five bandits armed with machine guns held up a restaurant across from Cook county hospital, escaping with $6,000 today after terrorizing more than a score of physicians, nurses and other hospital employees.

When the bandits entered the restaurant they scattered to corners of the room and covered the patrons with machine guns as the leader of the robbers announced a holdup was being enacted.

VETERANS' LOAN BILL IS EXAMINED BY DEPARTMENTS

BE VETOED AND VETO
OVERRIDDEN

ALL BEFORE ADJOURNMENT OF
CONGRESS ON FOURTH
DAY OF MARCH

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 21.—The veterans' loan bill went the rounds of the government departments today, collecting arguments why it should not become a law.

President Hoover dispatched it to department heads for official reports before writing an apparently futile veto message upon it, probably next Tuesday or Wednesday.

That the bill will be vetoed and the veto overridden by congress before adjournment March 4 now seems a foregone conclusion. Mr. Hoover announced late yesterday he was preparing to act upon the measure the middle of next week. Sen. Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, serving as spokesman for the executive in the senate, then announced the action of which the president spoke would be a veto.

Mechanics of administrative consideration of the bill will, however, require several days. Reports are necessary from Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Veterans' Affairs Administrator Hines. The views of both are known.

Mellon has characterized the proposal as a drain upon the already overburdened coffers of the government. Hines has said he expects 75 per cent of 3,400,000 world war veterans to borrow the full amount provided in the bill, 50 per cent of the face value of their adjusted service certificates. He has estimated this would require the treasury to raise about a billion dollars. Mr. Hoover has endorsed their views.

The compromise Muscle Shoals bill went to the senate today along the same path from the house taken by the veterans' loan bill. It will follow the veterans' bill within a few hours to President Hoover's desk.

Through a break in republican ranks, similar to that which occurred on the veterans' bill though not as wide, the Muscle Shoals measure was approved by the house last night. The vote was 216 to 151.

Senate acceptance of the compromise is foreordained, and is expected to be speedy. The bill probably will reach the White House before night. A total of 81 republicans deserted their house leaders to support the bill, while only three democrats bolted their party to vote against it.

The vote in the house indicated rather conclusively the measure could not pass over a presidential veto. That is the fate predicted for it in many quarters, though President Hoover has given no definite indications. His opinion of such a measure, however, has been rather clearly indicated previously.

If the chief executive vetoes it, it will be cast back again into the hopper of still unsolved problems, of which it now is the most aged. Ever since the world war gave the government a huge power and nitrate plant in Alabama, congress has been trying to decide what to do with the project upon which $150,000,000 has been spent.
